

Dear American Agricultural Partners,

The 2024 USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) County Committee election season is officially underway. Do you know an agricultural producer interested in serving on a local FSA County Committee? Now is the time to submit that person's name as a nominee.

FSA county committees are a critical component of the day-to-day operations of FSA and allow grassroots input and local administration of federal farm programs. Nationwide, more than 7,700 dedicated members of the agricultural community have been elected by their peers to serve on FSA county committees. The committees are made up of three to 11 members who serve three-year terms. Nowhere else in the federal government do citizen stakeholders play such a substantial and meaningful role in the delivery of federal programs.

Annual elections are held in Local Administrative Areas (LAA). LAAs are elective areas for FSA committees within a single county or multi-county jurisdiction. This may include LAAs focused on an urban or suburban area. Farmers and ranchers who participate or cooperate in an FSA program, reside within an LAA that is up for election, and are of legal voting age can be a candidate.

From June 17 to Aug. 1, 2024, individuals can nominate themselves or others as a candidate. Additionally, Tribal Nations and organizations representing underserved (minority and women) farmers or ranchers are encouraged to nominate candidates. Customers can identify which LAA they or their agricultural operation is in by using our GIS locator tool available at fsa.usda.gov/elections.

Participation in FSA's election process is an important part of the county election system — a system that serves all agricultural producers. Nomination forms are available on our website or from the FSA county office. Forms must be postmarked or delivered to the FSA office by Aug. 1, 2024. Voting takes place this fall, and new members and alternates will take office on Jan. 1, 2025.

To submit a nomination, please reach out to the FSA staff to the county office in your state. More information is available at USDA Service Centers and/or fsa.usda.gov/elections.

Thank you in advance for helping us ensure FSA county committees reflect the diversity of American Agriculture and the producers they are elected to serve.

Urban County Committee Elections

Eligibility to vote and hold office as a county committee member

Overview

USDA has been increasing services to producers in urban locations throughout the U.S. This includes Farm Service Agency (FSA) County Committees (COC), critical entities of the day-to-day operations of FSA that allow grassroots input and local administration of federal farm programs.

A list of locations with urban county committees can be found at fsa.usda.gov/elections.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) encourages all eligible producers and urban growers to vote or hold office as county committee members, including beginning or established producers, historically underserved producers (minority and women), or large or small operations.

Urban Farming

Urban agriculture includes the cultivation, processing, and distribution of agricultural products in urban and suburban areas. Community gardens, rooftop farms, hydroponic, aeroponic and aquaponic facilities, vertical production, and other innovative practices, are all examples of urban agriculture. Tribal communities and small towns may also be included. Urban farmers and gardeners work among diverse populations to expand access to nutritious foods, foster community engagement, provide jobs, educate communities about farming, and expand green spaces.

How it Works

Urban producers are elected to serve by urban producers in the defined Local Administrative Area (LAA) to serve a 3-year commitment. FSA county committees will meet at least quarterly and help identify the needs of the growing urban agriculture market for both Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) and FSA programs by:

- Outreach and partnership with local stakeholders.
- Identifying urban agriculture community needs to assist the USDA in determining potential (legislative, regulatory, administrative) program enhancements.
- Tailoring program recommendations for future grower opportunities.
- Understanding and promoting available USDA programs.
- Providing education on USDA programs and FSA committees to urban producers and local stakeholders.
- Reviewing producer applications and assisting with administrative and programmatic oversight.

Who is Eligible to Vote?

Contact your local FSA office to confirm your eligibility. Affirmation of eligibility to vote must be determined for a vote to count in an election. General eligibility requirements include:

1. Is of legal voting age, or if not of legal voting age, supervise and conduct the farming operation for the entire farm.
2. Is engaged in the production or sale of an agricultural commodity as either:
 - An individual who meets one or more of the following:
 - Is eligible and capable to vote in one's own right.
 - Is a partner of a general partnership.
 - Is a member of a joint venture.
 - An authorized representative of a legal entity, such as:
 - A corporation, estate, trust, limited partnership, non-profit or other business enterprise, excluding general partnerships and joint ventures.
 - A state, political subdivision of a state, or any state agency.Only the designated representative may cast a vote for the entity.
3. Participates or cooperates in any USDA program that is provided for by law.

Note: A cooperating producer is someone who has provided information about their urban operation(s) even if they have not applied or received USDA program benefits.

Contact your local FSA office to register as an urban grower, voter, or to be considered as an eligible nominee in the COC Election.

Interpretation of Voting Eligibility for Spouses in Community Property States

In community property states, the spouse of an eligible voter is also eligible to vote.

Local Administrative Areas

A county or multi-county jurisdiction served by an FSA county committee is divided into 3 to 11 local administrative areas (LAA). Each LAA is represented by one member on the FSA county committee. A person may only vote in one LAA (the LAA in which one participates or cooperates in FSA programs or programs administered by FSA). Urban participants must have an interest within the county or multi-county boundary.

Individuals can identify the LAA they or their farming interests are located in via a county committee election GIS locator tool on fsa.usda.gov/elections.

Multiple Farm Interests in Same County or Area

Eligible voters who participate or cooperate in USDA programs on separate farms in more than one LAA in the same county or multi-county jurisdiction may only cast one ballot and be eligible to hold office in one LAA. Voters with farming interests in more than one LAA will only be eligible to vote once and will be assigned to the LAA closest to where they reside. Urban producers residing outside the designated boundary may choose any LAA they have farming interest in upon request.

Who can Hold Office?

To hold office as an FSA county committee member, a person must meet each of the basic eligibility requirements described below:

1. Be a U.S. citizen.
2. Be an urban producer with records administered through the urban COC jurisdiction.
3. Reside or have farming interests in the LAA that is up for election.*

 In instances where a candidate has no farming interest within the LAA they reside, they may be assigned to the LAA where their farming interests are located.*

4. A person must not have been:
 - Removed or disqualified from:
 - FSA county committee membership or alternate membership, or
 - FSA employment.
 - Removed for cause from any public office or have been convicted of fraud, larceny, embezzlement or any other felony.
 - Dishonorably discharged from any branch of the armed services.

During the election period, individuals not receiving a ballot in the mail may obtain a ballot directly from their FSA county office. The ballot must be cast on or before the election deadline.

Discrimination Prohibited

USDA prohibits discrimination in all its programs and activities on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, disability, and where applicable, sex, marital status, familial status, parental status, religion, sexual orientation, genetic information, political beliefs, reprisal, or because all or part of an individual's income is derived from any public assistance program.

Urban Agriculture County Committees

Frequently Asked Questions

August 2023

Are Farm Service Agency (FSA) Urban County Committees New?

In 2020, USDA began standing up the first-ever FSA county committees focused exclusively on urban agriculture. These new committees are part of USDA's efforts to better support urban agriculture and each consists of 3 to 11 members. County committees have been used as the vehicle for farmer input on FSA programs since the 1930s. They represent farmers and set priorities at the local level.

What will the Urban County Committees Do?

The urban county committees will work to encourage and promote urban, indoor, and other emerging agricultural production practices. Additionally, the urban county committees may address areas such as food and nutrition access, community engagement, support of local activities to promote and encourage community composting, and food waste reduction. They also make determinations, listen to appeals and make decisions, and conduct outreach to urban and innovative producers for both FSA and Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS).

Why is it important?

Until now, there hasn't been a procedure for local urban growers to affect USDA priorities and funding. Urban and innovative producers are uniquely qualified to identify the needs of growers and their communities and provide direction on how USDA can best serve them. By serving on a county committee, you will be included in local decisions for USDA programs and can positively impact the services USDA provides urban farms.

How Long is a Term and What is the Time Commitment?

Committee members meet at least quarterly and terms are three years. Members have the option to run for reelection for up to three terms or nine years.

Where Are the Urban County Committees?

A list of locations with urban county committees can be found on fsa.usda.gov/elections.

Urban producers outside of the pilot areas who are interested on serving on their nearest county committee can inquire at the local FSA county office. Find your local office using our Service Center locator tool at farmers.gov/service-locator.

How Do the Nominations Work?

Urban farmers who participate in a USDA program or cooperate by providing USDA information about their farming operation in the local area identified for the urban county committee may either be nominated or may nominate themselves or others. Organizations may nominate candidates.

To be considered, a producer must sign an FSA-669A nomination form. The form and other information about FSA county committee elections are available at fsa.usda.gov/elections or farmers.gov/urban.

When are the Deadlines?

Mid-June – FSA will begin accepting nominations for urban county committees.

Early August– Nomination forms must be postmarked or received in the local FSA office.

Early November – Election ballots will be mailed to eligible voters.

Early December – Last day to return ballots to service center.

Jan. 1 – New member takes office.

New locations establishing urban county committees may have a special election timeline that will be publicized locally. After the initial establishment, new committees will follow a yearly election cycle as outlined above.

USDA Programs for Urban Farmers include:

FSA – Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program, Organic Certification Cost Share Program, microloans, and Farm Storage Facility Loans.

NRCS – Conservation financial and technical assistance, including high tunnels, soil health, and irrigation.

How can I serve as an advisor on an urban county committee?

In addition to elected or appointed members, FSA county committees may also include non-voting minority advisors. Advisors are appointed to county committees to ensure underserved (minority or women) producers are fairly represented. Anyone interested in serving as a county committee advisor may submit their request in writing to the local FSA county office.
